The following extract from the San Francisco News Letter relating to a passenger by the Japan arrived this morning will interest some readers:—Captain George W. Gift, formerly of the Navy, now of Memphis, Tennessee, goes out to China in the Japan for the purpose of looking into the business of inducing immigrants from China to his portion of the United States of America. The question of Chinese labor in the South is of great interest to the world. At least a million of laborers are demanded for the cotton fields alone. Many thousands are needed for the purposes of road building etc., besides the great numbers which will find employment in the great coal fields and iron mines of Tennessee, Virginia, Alabama and Georgia. The coal and iron of Alabama alone are said to exceed in extent and quantity that of England. Here is wealth indeed waiting for the touch of labor. Shall they take it in the South? We continue the question. The greatest merchants of China and trust that there will further the mission of Captain Gift as far as within his direct trade between China and the Southern States will surely lead to great commercial results. [We understand that Captain Gift brings some $60,000 in the way of funds for emigrants.—Ed. C. M.]

The question has recently been raised whether the Chinese who have emigrated to the States can be naturalized after a five years' residence. Under the Act of Congress now but "free white persons" can be naturalized, and the point arises, are the Chinese to be considered as "white?" Chancellor Kent says there are difficulties as to the yellow or tawny races of Asiatics, and it may well be doubted whether any of them are white persons within the purview of the law. Other legal writers assert that the phrase includes the copper-colored natives of America, or the Indians, the Africans, and the yellow races of Asia. Philanthropic vision.

The same question was raised, in Australia, three years ago, and was settled by special legislation which disqualifies for the privilege of naturalization all natives of China, subjects of the Chinese government, and all persons of native race born in any of the islands in Chinese waters. A Chinaman of Hongkong, for instance, would be subject to the disability. Another difficulty has, however, since arisen, which will be encountered in the same quarter presently, and it will assuredly appear in the States. Many Chinese have married European wives, and sons and daughters have been born into their families in the Colonies of Victoria and New South Wales. It is doubtful whether the existing Act is sufficiently elastic to apply to the offspring of these mixed marriages. The words of the Act are "born of Chinese parents," but in these cases the Chinese parentage is only partial. Again, the children are born on British soil which does not lie within the excepted territories. In Victoria no non-naturalized person is legally entitled to the suffrage, though through a careless supervision of the electoral rolls, the right is often exercised by Europeans who are foreigners. The repugnance which will probably be felt to admit the mixed race, to political equality will cause objections to arise to their enrolment, and then the point will be discussed. It will be well for the future peace of our American cousins, if they settle this matter before the Chinese lawfully acquire by long residence in the States a quasi claim which will surely be advanced on their behalf by speculative politicians when the number of Chinese citizens is sufficiently great to make their votes worth solicitation. From a New York paper we glean the following paragraph, which may be read as a commentary on the hint above tendered.—Ed. C. M.]

From Shanghai that the Duke of Edinburgh is still Settlement on the part of the British, but the Chinese are preparing themselves a couple of days to be the reliability of very certain that carmen are acting upon it are being actively a suitable reception. They are said to make Germans a theatrical both evenings will be held. Another will appear that Home expect the Duke until the earliest, and the will rent at the prolonged during November. Under it would seem almost Twenty-five Celestials from California arrived here recently, to be employed as waiters in the city hotels. The thing was accomplished very quietly, lest the Missississipian employed at these establishments a pity that the performances of the British and German Amateur Dramatic Clubs are to be condensed into one evening. It is however no fault of the authorities or of the companies, for the official programme laid down only gave the vessel some four or five days' stay in this harbour. If upon enquiry, it should turn out that the programme we have given upon Shanghai authority, be correct, it might be worth while to modify the intended arrangements so as at all events to let a day interval between each of the "events" which are to mark the visit—the inauguration of the City Hall and illuminations, the theatricals, and the like. So, scantly, however, has been the information even in official hands, that no other arrangement could have been made than those projected. Those interested in the forthcoming races will await further intelligence with some interest.

We are requested to state that Signor Abecco's Concert will take place on Monday evening next, not Friday, as was at first announced.

AT THE POLICE.

Inspector Kirby stated that he was sent with a guard to the Cross Roads last evening, and placed the man along the road, near where the Fire Brigade practised to take place. When standing by Gibb's godowns, he saw the "trap" of Mr. W. M. Morgan coming right in amongst the houses. He told that gentleman that he could not come that way, and that he would have to go round away from the house. Mr. M. said he would not be thus obstructed in his business, and cautioned the policeman to hold off, when pushed the policeman, but he (the Inspector) had not charged the defendant with assault. He then ordered defendant to leave the house, cleared it of clothes, firearms, &c., and seized an armful of his jewellery, in addition to taking a ring from Mr. Morgan, a woman living in the house with Mrs. Foley. One of the three prisoners was recognised by Foley as one of the three prisoners, who was charged with the murder of Yancey at Kwong-wu. Anna Foley next narrated what took place so far as she saw, on the night of the attack. The night was hot, and all the doors were open. She was aroused by the barking of the dog, and she saw the first prisoner with a sword in one hand, and a light in the other; there were eight burglars in all, and each had a sword and torches. First and second prisoners were the only persons who came into the room in which she was. First prisoner asked for money, and was told to take what he could, but hurt no one; he then began to break open the boxes, packing the contents in a mat bag which he carried. She also saw mugs taken by the first and second prisoners, and when she got up and tried to get out of the house, she was stopped by the third prisoner. The robbers were in the house for about an hour, and she saw them well; she had seen the 3rd prisoner before as the man brought to her husband as implicated in the murder of Mr. Yancey. 1st and 2nd prisoners were at the house on the morning of the day of the robbery, trying to sell oranges. Carolina Roach, widow, described the circumstances of the robbery in much the same style as the previous witness. The second prisoner pulled the gold ring off her finger, and then passed into Mrs. Foley's room. She recognised the 2nd and 3rd prisoners, the latter being on guard at the door. She lay quietly in her bed, being very much frightened; and when Mrs. Foley came to her, and wished to run out, she advised her to stay, as there were people outside. Her property stolen was worth over $100. Mr. Russell remanded the case for a couple of days, and hinted that it would be committed to the Supreme Court this Session.

THE UNIVERSITY BOAT RACE.

By the Japan, we have papers from San Francisco to the 4th September, with telegrams from Europe, &c., to the 3rd. The subject of most interest is naturally the International Boat Race, which we have already announced, was won by Oxford. The following are telegrams, to the New York papers, descriptive of the contest:—

"The Harvard crew won the toss for the position, and chose the Middlesex side, outside the semicircle. Both boats started at five hours, fourteen minutes, six and a half seconds. The tide at the start was sluggish and a light south-west breeze prevailed with smooth water. The Harvards were the first to catch the water and took the lead, gaining rapidly upon their opponents, making forty-five strokes per minute against the Oxford's forty. At Bishop's Creek, thirteen furlongs from the start, the Harvards led half a length, and gaining headway they increased their lead as they passed the Willows. Their pace was subsequently slackened, and the Oxford pulled up, but the Harvards were still a three-quarter length ahead at Craven Point, three-quarters of a mile from the start. The Oxford now went on with a steady drag, but the Americans rapidly increased the lead, and at the Crab Tree, the mile post from the aqueduct, they were a couple of lengths ahead. Beyond here the Harvards were taken wide, and the Oxford quickened their speed and reduced the gap at the Soap Works, a mile and a half from the start, to half a length. The Harvards now pulled up with a magnificent spurt to Hammersmith Bridge, a mile and three-quarters, but in shooting the bridge they lost distance. They gained opposite the middle Mall, when the Oxford spurred and came up gradually to the Harvards, but when opposite Dove's the boats were found to be too close together. The Harvards gave way, and at Chiswick, two and a half miles, the boats were level. After proceeding fifty yards further, the Oxford began to gain, though temporarily; the Harvards again got even with them. The Oxford gained rapidly at Chiswick, where the pace became severe, which apparently told on the Harvards, who were rather wild at this part of the race. From this point the Oxford rapidly drew ahead, and, in a few strokes, obtained the lead by two lengths. The Harvards, rowing pluckily, held them there for half a mile, when they fell astern, and the Oxford at thirty-eight strokes per minute, shot Barnes bridge, three and five-eighths miles, three lengths ahead. Along Barnes Beach the Harvards refrained strokes. Loring, with river water, (Loring being thirsty, perhaps) thereby retarding their boat. The Americans tried to spur, but found the effort ineffectual, the Oxford getting more lead, and eventually winning the race by four lengths. Easing up the last few strokes, and pulling up fresh, the Oxford arrived at the Ship at five o'clock thirty-six minutes and forty-seven seconds, making the four and a quarter miles in twenty-one minutes and forty and a half seconds. The Americans were well received at the finish, and returning, landed at Barnes. The race was a good one, and excited a degree of enthusiasm along the banks of the river utterly unknown in previous races."

Mr. Smilley telegraphs to the Tribune: "The morning opened bright and clear,

Fletcher (to the boy). You know me? All right, all right, all right (accompanied by a sarcastic nod). That is the violet untruth you ever spoke in your life. (This latter latter assertion was bawled out at the top of the witness's voice, and was delivered with some dramatic action).—His Worship advised Fletcher not to be so demonstrative, and asked whether it was true or not that he used to pay for his beer. Fletcher: Certainly not, sir; certainly not, your Worship (in a tone of solemn deliberation). I never paid, or on my solemn oath, for a single glass, and never saw such a thing done; it is the violet untruth. Is it true, to Inspector Grimes, this?—He said, was a boarder with Mr. Volkman for a fortnight, for which he paid $20, during which time he got all his drink free. Messrs. Walker & Co. If any one said he was with him and saw him pay money, he would deny him. He was speaking perfect truth; this boy had perjured himself. His Worship said he would round this case again for a week, when the Freshman would be down in the Duplex. Volkman would enter into a recognisance for $100.

Three Chinese were charged with the burglary on the house of Jeremiah Foley (P. C. O. No. 1) at Yau-mat-hi on the 29th of August last. Foley narrated what he learnt of the affair that night when he returned from duty, the burglary having been committed, during his absence. It may be remembered that the robbers entered the house, cleared it of clothes, firearms, &c., and seized an armful of his jewellery.

He had not charged the defendant with assault. He then ordered defendant to leave the house, cleared it of clothes, firearms, &c., and seized an armful of his jewellery.

He refused to go back, as his business was not completed for the day, and he had a right to be where he was. His pony was then seized by a number of policemen, and he did say that if they did not hold off he would make them. Then a theatrical-looking man with a sword between his legs came up and ordered him to be taken into custody. He (Morgan) asked what was to be done with the pony, when this man said "take it into custody too, take them all, as they had all swords and torches." He then ordered defendant to go back, and not come that way. He refused to go back, as his business was not completed for the day, and he had a right to be where he was.
